Overview

How is import regulated in Brunei?

The import of all goods into Brunei is monitored by the Royal Customs and Excise Department. Importers must register with the port of entry. Determination of duty classification is based on Excise Duty Orders 2012 and 2007. Import permits are required for some products. Licenses for import are available from the relevant government agencies.

Does Brunei impose duties on exported goods?

Since 1973 Brunei did not impose duties on exported goods. It is intended to promote local entrepreneurship. Every person arriving in Negara Brunei Darussalam shall declare all dutiable goods in his possession, either on his person OR in any baggages OR in any vehicles to the proper officer of customs for examination.

What are customs duties in Brunei?

Customs duties refer to taxes imposed by governments on goods imported into or exported from a country. In Brunei, these duties serve not only as a source of revenue for the government but also play a crucial role in regulating trade and protecting local industries.

Why is Brunei exempt from customs duties?

Brunei has established specific exemptions from customs duties to streamline the importation of certain goods, reflecting its commitment to facilitating trade and encouraging inbound investments. These exemptions are typically designed to support particular sectors, diplomatic relations, and charitable endeavors.

How to import non-prohibited goods in Brunei Darussalam?

Non-prohibited goods can be imported under an open general license. Completed customs declaration forms must be submitted via the Brunei

Darussalam National Single Window website with supporting documentation such as invoices, freight and insurance slips, airway bills, and packing lists.

Why is documentation important for imports in Brunei?

When engaging in import activities in Brunei, it is crucial to understand the essential documentation required to ensure compliance with customs regulations. Proper documentation not only facilitates the clearance of goods but also minimizes delays and potential penalties.
