What is a solar battery?

A solar battery is an optoelectronic semiconductor sheet that uses sunlight to generate electricity directly, also known as "solar chip" or "photovoltaic cell". As long as it is illuminated by a certain illumination condition, it can instantly output voltage and generate current when there is a loop.

What is a silicon solar battery?

Silicon solar batteries are generally made of P+/N type structure or N+/P type structure. P+ and N+ represent the conductivity type of the semiconductor material on the front side of the solar cell; N and P represent the conductivity type of the semiconductor material on the backside of the solar cell.
