Where is the Guiana Space Centre located?

Categories: Launch Locations, Space Exploration Locations The Guiana Space Centre (Centre Spatial Guyanais, CSG), located near Kourou in French Guiana, is a premier spaceport operated by the French space agency CNES (Centre National d'Études Spatiales) and the European Space Agency (ESA).

What is the Guiana Space Center (CSG)?

The Guiana Space Center (CSG) is a world-renowned launch site, combining a strategic equatorial location with modern infrastructure. Find out how this unique facility enables Arianespace to guarantee safe, flexible and environmentally-friendly launches for institutional and commercial customers.

What is the CSG in French Guiana?

The CSG in French Guiana is a true symbol of European space cooperation. Since the first launch of Ariane 1 in 1979, the Guiana Space Center has been the stage of many successful space missions and has firmly consolidated Europe's position in the exploration and use of space.

What happened to the Guiana Space Centre?

As the space industry evolved, so did the Guiana Space Centre. In the 1990s and 2000s, the facility underwent major upgrades to accommodate the larger and more powerful Ariane 5 rocket. This included the construction of a new launch pad, ELA-3, which was specifically designed for the Ariane 5.

Why is French Guiana open to the east?

it has open sea to the east, so that lower stages of rockets and debris from launch failures cannot fall on human habitations. France made the decision to build its new launch base at French Guiana in 1964, shifting the country's nascent operations to South America from the French Sahara.
